

Full Name	Dr Niamh Moore
Institutional Position	Lecturer Fellow in Teaching and Academic Development
Institutional contact details	Department of Geography University College Dublin Belfield Dublin 4 IRELAND Tel: +353 1 716 8222 Email: niamh.moore@ucd.ie Web: http://www.ucd.ie/geograph
Research interests and expertise	My research interests are broad and focus on issues surrounding urban regeneration and sustainability, in particular industrial heritage, land use change, sustainability and social inclusion in Ireland and Western Europe. I have published in Irish and international journals, have co-edited with Mark Scott a book entitled Renewing urban communities: Environment, Citizenship and Sustainability in Ireland (Ashgate, 2005) and with Yvonne Whelan another volume entitled Heritage, Memory and the Politics of Identity (Ashgate, 2007). In late 2007 Dublin Docklands Reinvented: The postindustrial transformation of a European city quarter will be published by Four Courts Press.
Consultancy work	Groundwork Northern Ireland Dublin City Council
Current funded projects:	Associate Investigator on ACRE: Accommodating Creative Knowledge in Cities, EU Sixth Framework Project October 2006 – October 2010 Comparative study of thirteen European cities http://www2.fmg.uva.nl/acre/ Supervisor: Brownfields and the search for urban sustainability University College Dublin Ad Astra funding September 2006-September 2010
Other projects	Revalorising the city: Industrial heritage as an urban redevelopment tool (ongoing) Enhancing the first year experience of teaching and learning at third level May 2007-May 2009
Languages	Written English fluent Written and spoken Italian and Irish, intermediate level Spoken French, basic
Key words	Urban sustainability, brownfields, curriculum development, policy development and implementation

Details correct as at September 2007